

BOC Combi-Lite Cutting Attachment

Providing equipment solutions for our customers

The BOC Combi-Lite cutting attachment is the smallest in the BOC attachment family. The BOC Combi-Lite features silver-brazed construction, thick-walled stainless steel tubes, chrome plating for heat dissipation, and has inline tubes for excellent operator sight-line – even in cramped conditions.

It is a high-quality, lightweight cutting attachment ideally suited for use by electricians, plumbers, engineering contractors or hobbyists, or in environments where space is limited, portability is essential and light-duty gas cutting is required. This compact torch is capable of cutting up to 1.5" (40mm) steel.

BOC Combi-Lite Shank

Providing equipment solutions for our customers

The lightweight single-piece, gun-drilled BOC Combi-Lite shank can be used for brazing, welding or light-duty cutting with all fuels and is designed for portability, versatility and handling ease. The size of the handle allows access into areas where space is limited. This compact but tough torch can be used with BOC accessories to weld up to 5/16" (8mm) and cut up to 1.5" (40mm). The BOC Combi-Lite is ideally suited to refrigeration and HVAC, general engineering contractors, plumbers and hobbyists.

This shank has been designed to be used with oxy-acetylene. It is possible to use the shank for propane brazing, although the flame is less easily seated on the end of the nozzle.
